PREFACE

Prof. Dr. Mousa Numan Ahmad specializes in human nutrition and dietetics and is now a senior professor of Clinical Nutrition- Cardiometabolism here at the Department of Nutrition and Food Technology, Human Nutrition and Dietetics. The University of Jordan, Amman- Jordan. He is one of the founding members of this Department. Prof. Mousa served as Head of the Department of Nutrition and Food Technology during the years 2007-2012. He also chaired the Food and Nutrition Department and Acted Dean of the Faculty of Allied Medical Sciences at Applied Science Private University, Amman, Jordan (1993-1994) Prof. Mousa graduated from The University of Jordan with a first class BSc in 1979; he obtained the MSc in 1982 and the PhD in 1986 from King's College London, London University, United Kingdom, in Human Nutrition and Dietetics. He actively participates in the academic and administrative development of the Department of Nutrition and Food Technology during the 30 years of service; this includes establishment, development and organization of curricula, laboratories, conferences, workshops and training courses in the field of human nutrition and dietetics. At this department, Prof. Mousa teaches several undergraduate and postgraduate courses in human nutrition and dietetics particularly human nutrition and metabolism, introduction to dietetics, diet therapy, clinical nutrition, nutritional biochemistry, nutritional bioenergetics, nutrition and biochemistry of carbohydrates, lipids and proteins, and clinical nutrition for nursing and pharmacy students. His research interest is Clinical Nutrition- Cardiometabolism. To date, Prof. Mousa published more than 70 scientific papers, supervised over 70 MSc and PhD postgraduate students, participated in over 170 postgraduate examination committees and about 65 PhD and MSc proficiency examination committees, and has 10 ongoing research works. He was awarded 2 sabbatical years. Prof. Mousa is an editor of 3 journals and a reviewer for over 20 international journals. He has a number of scientific, academic, administrative and consultative links at local, regional and international levels. Prof. Mousa attended several of conferences and workshops, and participated in many training courses and consultations. He also participated in organizing 2 international conferences and 2 workshops in nutrition and dietetics in Jordan, and in 2 Human Nutrition Accreditation Committees at The Ministry of higher Education, Amman- Jordan. At the community level, Prof. Mousa is an active member of several societies and committees in a number of ministries and governmental and nongovernmental organizations.

CURRENT POSITION

Professor of Human Nutrition and Dietetics- Clinical Nutrition/ Cardiometabolism/Nutritional Biochemistry, Department of Nutrition and Food Technology/ Human Nutrition and Dietetics, The University of Jordan, Amman, Jordan.

FIELDS OF SPECIALIZATION

Human Nutrition and Dietetics- Clinical Nutrition/ Cardiometabolism/Nutritional Biochemistry.

EDUCATION

- PhD. Human Nutrition and Dietetics, King's College- London University, UK, 1986
- MSc. Human Nutrition and Dietetics, King's College- London University, UK, 1982
- BSc. Nutrition and Food Technology, Jordan University, 1979

PhD THESIS

Erythrocyte Sodium and Potassium – Ion- Activated Adenosine Triphosphatase (EC 3.6.1.3): Nutritional Studies in Normal Man.

MSc THESIS

Dietary Fat and Human Erythrocyte Fatty Acid Composition: A Dose Exposure- Response Study.

RESEARCH INTERESTS

Clinical Nutrition/ Cardiometabolism: Pathophysiology, Biochemistry, Energetics, Nutrition, Dietetics Epidemiology and Related Policies of Chronic Diseases Characterizing Cardiometabolic Syndrome Particularly Obesity, Diabetes Mellitus, Dyslipidemia, Hypertension, Cancer, and Thyroid Disorders. Traditional, Nutraceutical, Herbal, Functional, and Health Foods.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

- 2007-2012: Head of the Department of Nutrition and Food Technology, The University of Jordan, Amman, Jordan.
- 1999-2000: Visitant Professor/Associate- Department of Nutrition and Food Sciences, Jordan University of Science and Technology-Irbid, Jordan (Sabbatical year 1999/2000).
- 1993-1994: Dean/Acting, Faculty of Allied Medical Sciences, Applied Science Private University- Amman, Jordan (Sabbatical year 1993/1994).
- 1993-1994: Head of the Department of Food and Nutrition, Faculty of Allied Medical Sciences, Applied Science Private University- Amman, Jordan (Sabbatical year 1993/1994).

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

a) TEACHING (40%)

Teaching undergraduate and postgraduate courses in human nutrition and dietetics programs.

b) RESEARCH (40%)

Several lines of research programs including supervision of those for postgraduate students (MSc and PhD) in human nutrition and dietetics.

c) COMMUNITY SERVICE (10%)

Member of several professional national and international committees and societies, ad hoc reviewer (scientific journals and academic promotions) and participating in several training courses and consultations in human nutrition and dietetics.

d) ADMINISTRATION (10%)

Head of nutrition and food technology department, faculty dean/acting, chair of several academic councils and committees including ad hoc ones at the department, faculty and university levels.

TEACHING EXPERIENCE

(1) Biographical Teaching Experience:

- 1999-2000: Visitant Professor/Associate of Human Nutrition and Dietetics, Department of Nutrition and Food Sciences, Jordan University of Science and Technology-Irbid, Jordan (Sabbatical year 1999/2000).
- 1993-1994: Visitant Professor/Associate of Human Nutrition and Dietetics, College Dean/Acting and Head of the Department of Food and Nutrition, Faculty of Allied Medical Sciences, Applied Science University- Amman, Jordan (Sabbatical year 1993/1994).

(3) Description of Major Taught Courses: Undergraduates

(0603332) Human Nutrition and Metabolism

(3 Credit Hours)

Applications of human nutrition concepts emphasizing the integration of the effect of nutrient and nutritional status of metabolic and physiological function at cellular, tissue, organ and whole body level in humans as related to health and disease; regulation of metabolic homeostasis; health claims and their nutritional implications; dietary standards and their methods of determination under different physiological conditions; drug- nutrient interactions and nutrition and physical fitness. (Average enrollment per semester: 60 students).

(0603432) Energy in Nutrition

(3 Credit Hours)

Substrate and thermodynamics in metabolism; cellular and whole body energy metabolism and its regulation and methods of measurement in man and animals. Regulatory aspects of energy intake, energy expenditure, thermogenesis and body energy stores. Thermogenic defects in obesity and the effect of dieting. (Average enrollment per semester: 40 students).

(0603353) Introduction to Dietetics

(3 Credit Hours)

Application of the basic human nutritional principles in the selection of normal and therapeutic diets, emphasizing the elements of nutritional care process, concepts of dietary guides, criteria of the healthful diet, interviewing and counseling techniques and role of the dietician, common hospital therapeutic diets and major disease requiring diet therapy. (Average enrollment per semester: 80 students).

(0603231) Fundamentals of Nutrition Science

(3 Credit Hours)

Basic concepts of nutrition, nutrients and their metabolism in the living body, focusing on the fate of nutrients and their interrelationships, energy release and disease symptoms of malnutrition. (Average enrollment per semester: 80 students).

(0603232) Applied Nutrition for Nursing

(3 Credit Hours)

Fundamentals related to nutrients and energy with respect to digestion, absorption, metabolism, functions, dietary sources, diseases of malnutrition and requirements throughout the life cycle; assessment of nutritional status, formulation and planning of diets in the management of common diseases of different body systems, nutrition counseling, and use of therapeutic diets and selected chronic diseases of affluence. (Average enrollment per semester: 60 students).

(0633332) Human Nutrition

(3 Credit Hours)

Applied concepts of human nutrition emphasizing the elements of nutritional care process, role of the nutritionist and dietician and concept of dietary guides. Criteria of the healthful diet, dietary standards and methods of their determination under different physiological conditions. Malnutrition in the individual and community and its evaluation and management, drug-nutrient interactions, and nutrition and physical fitness. (Average enrollment per semester: 60 students).

CURRICULUM VITAE

MOUSA NUMAN AHMAD
PROFESSOR OF HUMAN NUTRITION AND DIETETICS
THE UNIVERSITY OF JORDAN
August, 2018

(0603100) Principles of Human Nutrition

(3 Credit Hours)

Basic concepts of human nutrition including a brief account of nutrients and their food sources as well as their body requirements in the different stages of the life cycle. Planning the balanced and healthy diet and its role in human health and disease. Malnutrition as influenced by local food habits and a brief account of the world food problems. Food safety and sources of food contamination. (Average enrollment per semester: 60 students).

(0603451) Therapeutic Nutrition

(3 Credit Hours)

Application of dietetics in the treatment of some diseases, including cardiovascular diseases, respiratory and kidney diseases; also severe disease conditions requiring nutritional rehabilitation such as situations of some surgeries and severe illnesses including burns, accidents, cancer and AIDS; and the use of tube feeding and total parental nutrition. The practical part includes selected case studies and dietetic applications. (Average enrollment per semester: 60 students).

(0603490) Seminar in Human Nutrition and Dietetics

(1 Credit Hour)

Training of the students to collect information on a certain subject in an area of specialization from different sources; presentation and discussion of the subject. (Average enrollment per semester: 12 students).

(0603493) Training in Applied Nutrition

(3 Credit Hour)

Applications in balanced healthy nutrition including biochemical, clinical, anthropometric and dietary/nutritional indicators, and meal planning for different age and physiological groups. Nutritional epidemiology and use of laboratory animals in nutritional research. Training in therapeutic nutrition for different disease conditions covering planning therapeutic diets and applications of nutritional care elements. (Average enrollment per semester: 100 students).

(4) Description of Major Taught Courses: Postgraduates

(0603952) Lipids in Nutrition

(3 Credit Hours)

An advanced level study of the physiological molecular and biochemical aspects of lipids including digestion, absorption and metabolism and their regulatory aspects. It also involves the study of the regulatory and metabolic aspects of the cell membrane on both structural and functional levels as well as the study of certain lipid-related physiological, genetic and biochemical problems. (Average enrollment per semester: 10 students).

(0603953) Proteins in Nutrition

(3 Credit Hours)

An advanced study, based on the physiological and biochemical principles of protein digestion, absorption, metabolism and regulation; certain physiological, biochemical, and nutritional problems concerned with proteins and amino acids such as use of amino acids as supplement in health and disease; brief account of protein biosynthesis; study of various methods used in the nutritional evaluation of food proteins, taking into consideration human protein requirements. (Average enrollment per semester: 10 students).

(0603951) Carbohydrates in Nutrition

(3 Credit Hours)

An advanced level study of the physiological molecular and biochemical aspects of carbohydrates including digestion, absorption and metabolism and their regulatory aspects; as well as the study of certain carbohydrate-related physiological, genetic and biochemical problems. (Average enrollment per semester: 10 students).

(0603967) Nutritional Bioenergetics

(3 Credit Hours)

An advanced level study of substrate and thermodynamics in metabolism; molecular, cellular and whole body energy metabolism and its regulation and methods of measurement; regulatory aspects of energy intake, energy expenditure, and body energy stores; white and brown adipose tissue cellularity and metabolic activity; thermogenic mechanisms and their hormonal regulation; biochemical and physiological aspects of fed-starve cycle and its nutritional interaction and metabolic consequences; homeostasis of body weight regulation; thermogenic defects in obesity and the effect of relevant polymorphism, dieting and exercise. (Average enrollment per semester: 10 students).

(0603968) Clinical Nutrition

(3 Credit Hours)

Advanced level study of certain disease cases with emphasis on the role of nutrition and the use of appropriate diets needed for nutritional rehabilitation in selected infancy and childhood diseases and situations of main surgeries and severe illness which require long term rehabilitation such as burns, accidents, AIDS, cancer, kidney failure and transplant and respiratory diseases; The use and preparation of tube feeding formulas and total parenteral nutrition and relating the biochemical indices with the patient's nutritional status. (Average enrollment per semester: 10 students).

(0603751) Advanced Nutritional Biochemistry

(3 Credit Hours)

A study of the biochemical aspects of carbohydrate, lipid and protein utilization by man, with emphasis on their interrelations and uniqueness of individual organs and tissues in metabolism, as well as their homeostatic regulation. (Average enrollment per semester: 20 students).

(0603761) Advanced Diet Therapy

(3 Credit Hours)

An advanced level study of the defects of normal biochemical and physiological regulatory processes in nutrient-based disease states, emphasizing the pathophysiological changes in disease-affected organs. These states include obesity, diabetes, metabolic syndrome, selected GIT diseases, cardiovascular diseases, liver and pancreas diseases, with focus on most recent practices of nutritional status assessment and dietary planning, especially in chronic diseases and organ transplant. (Average enrollment per semester: 20 students).

(0603793) Scientific Research Methodology

(1 Credit Hour)

Study of the basics of scientific research; identification of research problem; formulation of its hypothesis, data collection and statistical analysis; ethics in scientific research; training in writing a research proposal. (Average enrollment per semester: 20 students).
